

NO NOMINATION BY DEMOCRATS

State Convention Adjourned Without Making Any Nomination For State Ticket.

LEAVES MATTERS IN THE AIR NOW

Opponents To Aylward Succeed In Side-Tracking His Endorsement By The Assembled

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23.—The Wisconsin state democratic party has adjourned without making any nominations. It is claimed that the enemies of John Aylward succeeded in accomplishing this by forcing an endorsement of the Madison man for the governorship.

With the exception of hearing

Hoyt's speech on democracy and matters in general yesterday afternoon, passing resolutions and transacting other business this morning made ready by special committees named yesterday nothing of importance was accomplished by the sessions.

It was nine thirty this morning when the convention was called to order with T. H. Clouty of Plattville as permanent chairman. Then came the report of the committee on resolutions. It was a beautiful set of resolutions embodying the majority of the planks of the national democratic party and was unanimously adopted.

It especially commended the planks of the national party which favored the reduction of tariff, control of trust combination, a physical valuation of railway property and election of United States senators by popular vote.

Yesterday the delegates from the first congressional district endorsed H. A. Mohrman of Clinton as their choice for the democratic nomination for congress. It is probable that Mr. Mohrman will make the race and J. J. Cunningham of Janesville, who was endorsed by the Rock county convention will withdraw. Calvin Stewart of Kenosha will also be a candidate.

The question of endorsement of candidates by the convention was then brought up and it was decided to leave them to the primary election to decide. The convention then adjourned sine die.

Just prior to being escorted to the platform Chairman Clouty received the news that his mother had just died. Notwithstanding the sad tidings Clouty mounted the rostrum and delivered his address to the audience, but few of which knew his distress.

WILL FIGHT THE PROPOSED ROAD

CINCINNATI CONSTRUCTION COMPANY MAY MEET OPPOSITION.

SO SAYS MR. MONTGOMERY

Plans to Organize the Farmers
Against the Project to Defeat the Interurban Plans.

That Madison is much interested in the advent of the Janesville-Madison interurban is evidenced by the activity of President Montgomery of the local traction company of that city. The special correspondent of the Gazette in Madison has made a careful investigation of the claim that Montgomery would fight the advent of the new road and sends the following dispatch relative to the matter.

Persons who are cognizant with the situation will remember that in the past Mr. Montgomery has been the stumbling block for proposed interurbans and despite his statements, he would welcome a road to connect with his own. It is stated with authority that when the Cincinnati Construction company are ready to enter Madison a way will be found to insure it.

While the work of the Cincinnati company has been slow it has been sure and every step taken has been carefully investigated before being taken. When the application is made to the State Railway commission it will be in such form that no mistakes can occur and the delay will be reduced to a minimum. In writing of the Madison situation the Gazette correspondent says:

"The Cincinnati Construction company will not get an entrance into Madison without a struggle against the opposition of the Southern Wisconsin Railway Co., the Madison traction system.

"The local traction corporation, which has already blocked more than one well advanced proposition to supply this capital city of the state with interurban facilities, is again assuming its dog-in-the-manger attitude and is evidently preparing to either block up the new company or block the enterprise.

"Warren Montgomery, son of F. W. Montgomery, the owner of the Madison road, was heard to remark in conversation that he did not believe that the new company would be able to get from the state railroad commission the required certificate of necessity and convenience for entrance into Madison.

"He predicted that when the Janesville company sought to get into Madison there would be fierce opposition from farmers along the line. Other sources of information indicate that the local company will have a part in the formation of this predicted opposition of the farmers. It seems that it will be a part of the plan of the Montgomerys to resist the approach of the Janesville line by getting farmers to make opposition.

"While Madison has one of the best traction systems in the state and is one of the best paying properties in the northwest, the company is decidedly unpopular, largely on account of its opposition to the numerous interurban propositions which have come and gone. It is certain that had the Madison company been receptive or even fair during the past three years, Madison would now have interurban connections with Janesville and Chicago.

"Every time an interurban proposition is sprung the people of Madison are hopeful that the enterprise will be carried out. If testimony of citizens of Madison may be needed in a hearing before the railroad commission on the desirability of an interurban to Janesville, it will be readily available."

COUNCILS ENJOYED AN ANNUAL PICNIC

Deloit and Janesville Knights of Columbus Have Yearly Outing at Yost's Park.

At Yost's park today the Carroll Council of Janesville and St. Thomas Council of Deloit held their annual picnic. The picnic lasted throughout the day and in the afternoon an athletic program was given. The principal event of the day aside from the ball game was the walking match from Janesville to Yost's Park between Patrick Kavanaugh and Col. W. T. Douley. Mr. Kavanaugh won the event handsily, the other contestant quitting at the Chas. Holtz factory.

In the afternoon there was a baseball game between teams chosen from the Janesville council and the Deloit council. The game was umpired by Patrick Kavanaugh of Deloit assisted by a detachment of Deloit militia. The rest of the program was as follows: Pony race; unimpaired ladies' race; married ladies' race; ladies' and gentlemen's jig dance; fat men's race—100 yards; boys' race—12 years of age; girls' race—12 years of age; tug-of-war, Deloit vs. Janesville. There will be dancing this evening.

London, July 23.—In the final 400-metre flat race Carpenter of Cornell university came in first, but the officials declared it was no race on the ground that Carpenter had "bored" (pocketed) his fellow runner, an English runner. The final standing of the high jump was won by Perry of New York—five feet two inches.

Mare Stolen at Waukesha: About one o'clock this morning Chief Appleby received a telephone message from the authorities at Waukesha asking the local officers to keep a sharp lookout for a twelve-year-old chestnut mare, hitched to a leather-top buggy with red running gear, which was stolen there last evening. The man who is alleged to have taken the property is George Bender, age 25 years, complexion and weight light, sandy hair, and wearing a light suit of clothing and saddle straw hat. The mare has one white hind foot and is branded on the left front foot with the number 15.

MARATHON RACE IS SET FOR TOMORROW

Olympic Games Will be Practically Concluded With Long Race
Tomorrow.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, July 23.—The Olympic games will be virtually concluded tomorrow with the Marathon race. So far as the general public is concerned this is the most attractive event of the entire program and, as might be expected, the interest manifested in the race is of the keenest sort.

The race will start at the royal borough of Windsor and finish with a circuit of the running of the track in the stadium at Shepherd's Bush. The distance is twenty-six miles. While the course is generally satisfactory it is not expected that any record-breaking time will be made. It is in good condition and arrangements have been made to keep it clear of traffic, especially near the finish, where enormous crowds are expected to congregate.

About sixty of the long-winded runners are expected to make the start. The large field and the further fact that the entrants represent various countries and have never before met in competition makes it almost absurd to venture a prediction of the result of the great contest. So far as the London press is concerned no two critics seem to agree on the probable winner. Some are of the opinion that Great Britain is certain to capture the coveted trophy, while others with an equal show of wisdom and with seemingly as good argument to support their opinion flatly declare that John Bull has not even a chance to win.

America does not seem to be much of a favorite so far as the Marathon is concerned, though the chances of Canada in the long distance event have received some attention. Among the names the public seems to be quite general that the race will go to a runner wearing the colors of some Continental country, probably Greece, though there does not appear to be any reason that pure sentiment for making Greece the favorite.

JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS IS 75 YEARS OLD TODAY

Is Only Representative Of North America In The Sacred College.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Baltimore, Md., July 23.—His eminence James Cardinal Gibbons, the only representative of North America in the Sacred College, enters upon his seventy-fifth year today. The Cardinal is now on the Atlantic bound for Europe. He is going to visit the Pope at Rome and later he will be a prominent participant in the convention of the International Eucharistic League in London.

Cardinal Gibbons is not only the primate of the Roman Catholic church in America, but one of the Returning to Baltimore at the age of seventeen, he began to study for the priesthood at St. Charles College. After finishing his course there he pursued his theological studies at St. Mary's Seminary, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1861. In 1868 he was consecrated bishop and Vicar of North Carolina and in February, 1878, he was raised to the archbishopric and on June 30, 1886, he received the red hat.

The years of life have told lightly upon Cardinal Gibbons, and to look at him one would not imagine that he had reached his seventy-fifth year.

most eminent leaders of the church throughout the entire world. He has spent over half a century in the service of the church. On account of his piety and worth the Cardinal stands very high in Rome, and he is appreciated even the more because of the wisdom he has shown in keeping out of controversies that have caused excitement in the church.

Cardinal Gibbons was born in Baltimore, but at a tender age his parents took him with them to Ireland, where he received his elementary education.

Never what can be termed robust, a frugal husbandry of his physical powers has more than atoned for what nature did not bestow. Many a man of giant stature, minus the great reserve power of the Cardinal, would have succumbed to the tremendous mental strain which his high office entails. In the upbuilding of the faith his espousal, Cardinal Gibbons has worked in season and out of season. His strong hold upon the love and affections of the people of Baltimore regardless of creed is well known.

SOUTH AFRICAN BOY WINS SPRINT

DEFEATS RECTOR IN THE 100-METER RACE AT LONDON.

AMERICANS DO VERY WELL

Capture 400-Meter Hurdling, Running Broad Jump and Featherweight Wrestling Finals—New Records Made.

London, July 23.—Comparative gloom pervades the American camp. The athletes from over the seas had strongly cherished hopes of repeating Tuesday's grand record, making clean sweep in the track events, but a dark horse in the person of the South African youth, R. E. Walker, upset the calculations.

Walker broke the tape in what is considered the most important event in the Olympic games, the 100-meter dash, a short two feet in front of J. A. Hector, the University of Virginia crack, thereby putting an end to the nation's long succession of American triumphs which had begun to sadden the Britons.

Yankess Take Three Firsts. The American team did remarkably well at the stadium Wednesday but success had eluded them to the point where they were satisfied with nothing less than everything in sight. A world's record, by C. J. Bacon, of the Irish-American A. C., in the 400-meter hurdling, which he won in 55 seconds; an Olympic record of 24 feet 6 1/2 inches by F. C. Irons of the Chicago A. A., in the running broad jump; and the victory of G. S. Dole of Yale, in the featherweight wrestling, out of seven finals, should be a satisfactory day's performance.

Great Britain, as usual, came second among the countries, with S. V. Bacon winning the middleweight wrestling, and the English team defeating the Belgians in the water polo.

Semi-Finals at 400 Meters. J. H. Taylor, the colored University of Pennsylvania runner; J. C. Carpenter of Cornell university, and D. R. Hobbs of Yale, won their heats in the semi-finals of the 400 meters, with the English champion, Halswelle, their only opponent, for the final. Halswelle's feat in lowering the Olympic record was easily one of the most brilliant performances of the day. He covered the distance in 48.25 seconds, breaking Harry Hillman's record of 49.15 seconds made at St. Louis in 1904. Taylor's time was 49.45 seconds.

H. Cloughon, Irish-American A. C., and N. J. Cartmell, University of Pennsylvania, won two of the four semi-finals of the 200 meters and will oppose Kerr of Canada and Hawkins of the United Kingdom, in the final. The public is backing the Canadian to win.

The Scores to Date. Counting all the events held within and outside of the stadium, including many games in which the United Kingdom alone competed, the score up to date stands: United Kingdom, 32; America, 17; Sweden, 6; Norway and France, 2 each; Canada, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Finland, South Africa, 1 each.

The score in the field and track events, in which the American team came over to participate, is as follows: America, 75; United Kingdom, 56 1/2; Sweden, 12; Greece, 6; South Africa, 6; Canada, Norway, Italy, 3 each; France, Hungary, 1 1/2 each; Australia, Germany, Finland, 1 each.

Two Dead, Twelve Wounded. Bloody Career of Desperados in Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Boston, July 23.—Two dead, a man and a woman probably shot fatally, and ten others suffering from bullet wounds, sums up the record of the murderous career of two bandits who Wednesday terrorized the Jamaica Plain district, eluding the pursuit of hundreds of policemen and thousands of citizens. Striking on Tuesday night by entering a saloon in Jamaica Plain, three men, who are supposed to be Italian, killed one man with revolvers, wounded two others and, rifling the cash register, got away with $50.

Early Wednesday evening, after the police had searched for them unsuccessfully all day, two of the robbers again appeared in Jamaica Plain and, firing revolvers, ran through the most thickly settled part of the district, leaving a trail of victims behind them.

Early Thursday the pair were supposed to be hiding in Forest Hills cemetery, which was surrounded by several hundred heavily armed policemen.

Herbert S. Knox of Roslindale, night watchman at the cemetery, is the victim who is dead.

When he saw his victims fall to the floor he turned the revolver on himself, firing a bullet into his head and one into his breast. He died almost instantly.

The bullet aimed at the girl struck her in the month, but inflicted only a slight wound. Young Manz was wounded in the left side near the heart, and may die.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 23.—James Evans, city dog catcher, while in the northwestern section of the city Wednesday night attending to his duties, was attacked by a mob of about 200 negroes, with pistols, knives, clubs and rocks. Evans drew his revolver and fired into the crowd, instantly killing one negro.

SHOW FULL OF COMEDY.

Ringling Bros. Circus Has Company of World's Best Clowns. Laughter is an essential of a first-class circus performance, and the abundance of comedy in this year's program of Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows is one of the reasons of its remarkable attractiveness. A strong and thrilling variety of European school of comedy, and the American school of comedy supplied by the fifty best clowns in the world.

Every pause in the exciting bill is filled in with bewitching tomfoolery, screaming pantomimes, travesties and droll stunts. They are original and versatile clowns, many of the European school of comedy, an able American bunch being an unusual body of jesters as ever lived. There are a thousand hearty laughs wrapped up in the excellent program. From thrills the audience turns to laughter, the long line of great acts being punctuated with brilliant comedy.

When the big circus visits Janesville Thursday, July 30, it will begin the day with an all new parade, more elaborate than those of the past and twice as long. A considerably enlarged menagerie, embracing all that is novel in animal life, will also be in evidence, while the performance is introduced by another gorgeous spectacle, beautifully costumed and employing 1,200 people and 500 horses.

Many improvements that add comfort to the audience will be found this year. In the main tent individual folding opera chairs have been installed and an excellent military band plays operatic selections during the hour between the opening of the doors and the beginning of the performance.

The climax of all the daring and dangerous acts ever recorded is found in the sensational automobile double somersault act achieved by Mlle. La Belle Roche, a young French woman. There have been acts in the past in which an automobile in mid-air has turned a single somersault while leaving a gap. Such acts are now insignificant and tame. Mlle. Roche is the only person in the world who has ever attempted the awful feat of riding in an automobile which turns two complete somersaults high in air after a frightful plunge down a steep and narrow incline.

What Shall a Boy Do With His Vacation?

Is the title of a new Grand Trunk publication describing vacation camps in the Temagami region and in Algonquin National Park of Ontario. If your boy likes the wild you can get one by writing Geo. W. Vanux, A. G. P. & T. Co., 155 Adams St., Chicago.

Words of Praise. For the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimony. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has the name of its maker on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or the derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and local treatments of the gynecologist can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of women's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles. It will not dissolve or cure tumors. No medicine will. It will do as much as establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

You can't afford to accept a second opinion as a substitute for this remedy of proven composition.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter free. All correspondence is guarded as a sacred secret, and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best laxative and regulator of the bowels. They invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative; two or three a cathartic. Easy to take as candy.

Standard Oil case. Cool and unprejudiced opinion will hardly be surprised.

Now that the higher court has spoken, it implies no disrespect to say that the enormous $20,000,000 fine levied on the Standard Oil Company, and that there was a certain regrettable ring of the arrangement of the case when the opinion of the court when the penalty was imposed.

Of the assignments of error, the second is not too technical for lay consideration. If the number of rebutting offenses is, as Judge Landis ruled, to be measured by the number of car loads shipped, irrespective of the number of transactions between carrier and shipper, why would it not have been logical to push the principle farther, to practical absurdity, and measure the number of offenses by the number of barrels in a car-load when barrel lots were shipped?

A vindictive public sentiment, we say, will be disappointed at this reversal of Judge Landis' rulings and the thumping fine. But public sentiment probably that on the points of law involved the three well-seasoned and cool heads in the Circuit Court of appeals were sounder than the single one in the lower court.

Hayes Prayer.
Temporary Chairman M. A. Hoyt of Milwaukee, at the democratic state convention yesterday, made some surprising remarks. His brief address was filled with frequent allusions to biblical references. It was full of primitive Christianity more befitting a church convention than an assembly of the democratic party. It contained pungent passages and sharp thrusts. Republicans, socialists, Peckhamian reformers, big brewers and others were given a taste of rhetorical language that hurt. His references to Bryan were well timed and his term "Crown-william of the West" would have been appreciated by those who attended the Denver convention. It was a good speech, but too good for a political convention.

Mayor Heddles has started on the right track in seeing that the city's laws relative to wine rooms are enforced. Let him go further and see that the closing ordinance is enforced particularly on Sunday.

So Stephenson's campaign is to be stopped short by a gentleman named Boden of Milwaukee, who announces he is for Cook. Such doctrine as Boden puts forth will only make voters for the Marquette man and not help Cook.

Sen. La Follette is to be one of the Taft speakers in the west this summer even if he does not fully endorse the platform he stands on.

B. F. Kent of Chicago who carries 91 Years Like a Feather is Creating Old Friends in Janesville.

B. F. Kent of Chicago, ninety-one years of age and an light of step and quick of movement as a youth of twenty, is greeting old friends at the Hotel Niles today. Mr. Kent came west to Chicago in 1840 when that overgrown metropolis was a mere village. Subsequently he moved to Rock County to live and was register of deeds here in 1851 and 1852.

MAY BUILD SEWERS OF CEMENT BLOCKS

Rock County Concrete Stone Co. Proposes Introduction of New System to Supplant Vitrified Pipes.

Aldermen Carle, Buchholz, and Shoridan of the common council sewerage committee and City Engineer C. V. Kerch were conveyed in the police patrol wagon yesterday to the Rock County Concrete Stone Co.'s plant where a demonstration was given of the Purmley system of reinforced concrete block construction for sewers, conduits, and man-holes. Walter C. Purmley of New York City, former City Engineer of Cleveland, Ohio, and Ogden, Utah, and originator of the system, was on hand to explain his salient points.

Greater strength and durability, the possibility of more careful attention to the details of construction, and greater accuracy in line and grade are some of the advantages claimed for the block construction. The bottom blocks are designed and laid with plain butt joints and the blocks forming the sides and top are then set so as to form a ring which breaks joints with the bottom blocks, thus giving each ring an equal bearing upon two adjacent bottom blocks. Transverse steel rods are placed against the front or rabbeted end, of a completed ring and embedded in Portland cement mortar plaster. The blocks for the next ring are set against this mortared face, closing tightly and forcing out any excess of mortar. Defective blocks can be promptly rejected and the inspector can see that the joints are properly made, while in the case of the big vitrified pipes which cost from $5 to $8 apiece, there is a natural disposition to overlook small flaws and haphazard work in the jointing. The sewer is rapidly and easily put together without the use of the big cumbersome derricks and it is not necessary to litter the thoroughfare with planks. In the case of man-holes this cement sewer construction, where the sewer is moulded in the trench, it is impossible to take cognizance of bubbles or larger imperfections, whereas every portion of the block construction is open to inspection. Finally, it is claimed for the block system that it is much more economical than any other except in the case of piping of very small diameter, and that all the advantages claimed for it have been demonstrated in such cities as St. Paul, where it has been used successfully even for water mains.

The dozen or more contractors who are to file their bids tomorrow will present a special set of figures for the decision of the court which revoked the decision of Judge Landis as follows:

A not unreasonably vindictive popular sentiment will be sorely disappointed at the order by the appellate court for a retrial of the famous this sort of work. The introduction of the cement block system in place of the vitrified pipe would mean that most of the $8,000 to $10,000 which is to go into piping would remain here and that employment would be given to an additional force of some 15 or more men by one of the local industrial concerns.

SUPERVISORS MET AT COURT HOUSE

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED TO ORDER THIS MORNING.

R. P. SMITH IS TREASURER

Other Business as to Road Appropriations Was Transacted by County Board.

This morning at ten o'clock in the county clerk's office a special meeting of the Rock county board of supervisors was called to order by Chairman L. E. Gettle. The county clerk then read the call for the meeting signed by thirty-seven members of the board. The roll call showed that every member of the board but S. S. Jones was present. Supervisor Livermore then moved to appoint a county treasurer to fill out the unexpired term of the late treasurer, Oliver P. Smith. Supervisor Bear moved that the clerk cast a ballot for Royal P. Smith as such treasurer. The motion was carried and Royal P. Smith was appointed county treasurer to fill out the unexpired term of his father. The clerk then read the Postal Telegraph company's bill for telegrams sent with regard to the treasurer's bond.

On Road Appropriations. On motion of Supervisor Craft the appropriation to the Town of Centor which was half a mill and amounted to $62,500 was raised to $900, the town having raised its appropriation to a like amount. On motion of Supervisor Livermore the road appropriations in a number of the towns were referred to a special committee to be reported upon at the afternoon session. The chair appointed on the committee supervisors M. P. Richardson, C. M. Smith and F. F. Livermore. The appropriations in question were made by a number of towns in such a manner as not to be in accordance with the new law providing that the county shall give as much as the town appropriates within certain limits. The technicalities of the law were not observed and these actions of the towns will be changed so that now law.

Resolutions. F. F. Livermore then presented a resolution that the board take action upon the death of Oliver P. Smith and the chair appointed Supervisors Livermore, Shuman Smith and the chair as a committee to draw up suitable resolutions.

Sup. Livermore then moved that bill 113 as to certain telegraph messages be allowed. The matter of the illegal taxes in Beloit was referred to committee No. 1. Those taxes were levied on a lot which was wrongly described. A sheriff's sale for taxes was thus made invalid. The committee will recommend the tax with probable a fine.

An appropriation of $102.50 to the town of Harmony for roads was made, the town having set aside a like amount from the taxes.

On motion of F. F. Livermore the board then adjourned until one-thirty in the afternoon.

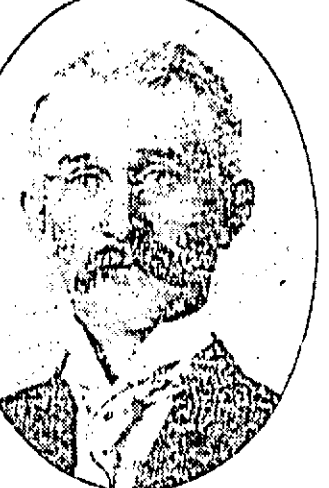

Afternoon Session. The afternoon session of the county board was called to order at one-thirty by Chairman Gettle and resolutions of respect on the death of Oliver P. Smith were presented by a committee of three. These resolutions were adopted, ordered to be put upon the minutes, and a copy ordered to be sent to Mrs. Smith and family.

Committee Report. The special committee appointed to consider road appropriations of the various towns reported that in accordance with the new law the towns of Newark, Plymouth, Harmony, and Janesville had each appropriated an amount for road building exceeding one-half a mill of the assessed valuation of the property in the town. The committee recommended that like amounts be paid by the county for the same purpose. The report was adopted.

Livermore then moved that committee No. 9 check up the treasurer's books and turn them over to the new treasurer. The clerk was ordered to pay to Mrs. Smith the July salary of the treasurer up to the time the treasurer should qualify, upon a motion of Mr. Livermore. It was also decided to pay to the town of Harmony $102.50 yet due it for road building. The committee then reported the per diem and mileage and the report was adopted and the board adjourned. During the afternoon the question of paying the blind of the county came up and District Attorney Fisher gave an opinion that the board could make such payments at a special meeting. The matter was, however, laid over until the November meeting.

CHAPTER IX.

THE little room off the library was Jane's "den." Her father had a better name for it. He called it her "web," but only in secret conference. Graydon Hamsomer lounged there in blissful contemplation of a recent fate, all the more enjoyable because his very ease was the counterpart of doubt and uncertainty. No word of love had passed between the mistress of the web and her loyal victim. But eyes and blood had translated the mysterious, voiceless language of the heart into the simplest of sentences. They loved and they knew it.

After leaving Righty at the club Graydon drove to the north side, thrilled to the marrow by the prophetic of the night, his heart was in that little room off the library—and had been there for months. It was the abode of his thoughts. The stars out above the cold, glittering lake danced merrily for him as he whirled up the Drive. The white carpet of February crinkled and creaked with the chill of the air, but his heart was hot and safe and sure. He knew that she knew what he was coming for that night—the first kiss!

Jane's face was warm; her eyes had the tender glow of joy expectant; her voice was soft with the promise of coming surrender. Their hands met and clasped as she stood to welcome him in the red, seductive dimness of the little throneroom. His tall frame quivered; his lean, powerful, young face betrayed the hunger of his heart; his voice turned husky. It was not as he had planned. Her beauty—her mere presence—swept him past the preliminary fears and doubts. His handclasp tightened, and his face drew irresistibly to hers. Then their hands went suddenly cold.

"You know, don't you, Jane, darling?" he murmured.

"Yes," she answered after a moment softly, securely. He crushed her in his strong arms. All the world seemed to have closed in about her. Her eyes, suffused with happiness, looked sweetly into his until she closed them with the coming of the first kiss. "I love you—oh, I love you," she whispered.

"I worship you, Jane!" he responded, "I have always worshipped you!"

It was all so natural, so normal. The love that had been silent from the first had spoken, that was all—had put into words its untold story.

"Jane, I am the proudest being in the world!" he said, neither knew how long afterward, for neither thought of time. They were sitting on the couch in the corner, their turbulent hearts at rest. "To think, after all, that such a beautiful being as you can be mine forever! It's—why, it's inconceivable!"

"You were sure of me all the time, Graydon," she remonstrated. "I tried to hide it, but I couldn't. You must have thought me a perfect fool all these months."

"You are very much mistaken, if you please. You did hide it so successfully at times that I was sick with uncertainty."

"Well, it's all over now," she smiled. And he sighed with a great relief.

"All over but the wedding," he said.

"Oh, that's a long way off. Let's not worry over that, Graydon."

"A long way off? Nonsense! I won't wait."

"Won't?"

"I should have said can't. Let's see. This is February. March, dearest?"

"Graydon, you are so much younger than I thought. A girl simply cannot be hurried through an engagement. Next winter."

"Next what? That's nearly a year, Jane. It's absurd! I'm ready."

"I know. It's mighty noble of you too. But I just can't, dearest. No one ever does."

"Don't—don't you think I'm prepared to take care of you?" he said, straightening up a bit.

She looked at his strong figure and into his earnest eyes and laughed so merrily that his resentment was only passing.

"I can't give you a home like this," he explained. "But you know I'll give you the best I have all my life."

"You can't help succeeding, Graydon," she said earnestly. "Every one says that of you. I'm not afraid. I'm not thinking of that. It isn't the house I care for. It's the home. You must let me choose the day."

"I suppose it's customary," he said at last. "Jane is the month for brides, let me remind you."

"Before you came this evening I had decided on January next, but now I am willing to—"

"Oh, you decided before I came, eh?" he laughed.

"Certainly," she said unblushingly. "Just as you had decided on the early spring. But listen, dear, I am willing to say September of this year."

"One, two, three—seven months. They seem like years, Jane. You won't say June?"

"Please, please let me have some of the penitentials," she pleaded. "It hasn't seemed at all like a proposal. I've really been cheated of that, you must remember, dear. Let me say at least, as they all do, that I'll give you an answer in three days."

"Granted! I'll admit it wasn't the sort of proposal one reads about in novels."

"But it was precisely as they are in real life, I'm sure. No one has a stereotyped proposal any more. The men always take it for granted and begin planning things before a girl can say no."

"Ah, I see it has happened to you," he said, jealous at once.

"Well, isn't that the way men do nowadays?" she demanded.

"A fellow has to feel reasonably sure, I dare say, before he takes a chance. No one wants to be refused, you know," he admitted. "Oh, by the way, I brought this—or this ring up with me, Jane."

"You darling!" she cried as the ring slipped down over her finger. And then for the next hour they planned, and the future seemed a thousandfold brighter than the present, glorious as it was.

"You can't help succeeding," she repeated. "The same as your father has, isn't he wonderful? Oh, Graydon, I'm so proud of you!" she cried enthusiastically.

"I can never be the man that the governor is," said Graydon lightly. "I couldn't be as big as father if I lived to be 125. He's the best ever! He's done everything for me, Jane," the son went on warmly. "Why, he even left dear old New York and came to Chicago for my sake, dear. It's the place for a young man, he says, and he gave up a great practice so that we might be here together. Of course he could succeed anywhere. Wasn't it bully of him to come to Chicago just—just for me?"

"Yes, Oh, if you'll only be as good looking as he is when you are fifty-five!" she said so platonically that he laughed aloud. "You'll probably be very fat and very bald by that time."

"And very healthy, if that can make it seem more horrible to you," he added.

"You know, don't you, Jane, darling?" he murmured.

"Yes," she answered after a moment softly, securely. He crushed her in his strong arms. All the world seemed to have closed in about her. Her eyes, suffused with happiness, looked sweetly into his until she closed them with the coming of the first kiss. "I love you—oh, I love you," she whispered.

"I worship you, Jane!" he responded, "I have always worshipped you!"

loves me. "I don't know how to convince you that my whole life will be given to her happiness. I am sure I can!"

"I know. It's all right, my boy. It costs a good deal to let her go, but I'd rather give her to you than to any man I've ever known. I believe in you."

"Thank you, Mr. Cable," said Graydon Hamsomer. Two strong hands clasped each other, and there was no mistaking the integrity of the grasp.

"But this is a matter in which Jane's mother is far more deeply concerned than I," added the older man. "She likes you, my boy. I know that to be true, but we must both abide by her wishes. If she has not retired?"

"Jane is with her, Mr. Cable. She knows by this time."

"She is coming," Mrs. Cable's light footsteps were heard crossing the hall, and an instant later Hamsomer was holding open the door for her to enter. He had a fleeting glimpse of Jane as that tall young woman turned down the stairs.

Frances Cable's face was white and drawn, and her eyes were wet. Her husband started forward as she extended her hand to him. He clasped them in his own and looked down into her face with the deepest tenderness and watchfulness in his own. Her lady awaited suddenly, and his expression changed to one of surprise and alarm.

"Don't—don't mind, dear," he said hoarsely. "It had to come. Sit down, do. There. Good Lord, Frances, if you cry now I'll go all to smash!"

He sat down abruptly on the arm of the big leather chair into which she had sunk limply. Something seemed to choke him, and his fingers went nervously to his collar. Before them stood the straight, strong figure of the man who was to have Jane forever.

Neither of them—nor Jane—knew what Frances Cable had suffered during the last hour. She accidentally had heard the words which passed between the lovers in the den downstairs. She was prepared when Jane came to her with the news later on, but that preparation had cost her more than any of them ever could know.

Lying back in a chair after she had almost crept to her room, she stared white faced and frightened at the ceiling until it became peopled with her wretched thoughts. All along she had seen what was coming. The end was inevitable. Love as it grew for them had known no regard for her misery. She could not have prevented its growth; she could not now frustrate its culmination, and yet as she sat there and stared into the past and the future she knew that it was left for her to drink of the cup which they were sipping—the cup of their joy and of her bitterness.

Fear of exposure at the hand of Graydon Hamsomer's father had kept her purposely blind to the inevitable. Her woman's intuition long since had convinced her that Graydon was not like his father. She knew him to be honorable, noble, fair and worthy. Long and often had she wondered at James Hamsomer's design in permitting his son to go to the extreme point in relation with Jane. As she sat there and suffered it came to her that the man perhaps had a purpose after all—an untimely, selfish design which none could forestall. She knew him for all that he was. In that knowledge she felt a slight, timid sense of power. He stood for honor so far as his son was concerned. In fair play she could expose him if he sought to expose her.

But all conjectures, all fears, piled into insignificance with the one great terror—what would James Hamsomer do in the end? What would he do at the last minute to prevent the marriage of his son and this child of his unknown parentage? What was to be his tribute to the final scene in the drama?

She knew that he was tightening his obnoxious coils about her all the time. Even now she could feel his hand upon her arm, could hear his sibilant whisper. Now she found herself face to face with the crisis of all these years. Her only hope lay in the thought that neither could afford the scandal of an open declaration. Hamsomer was merciless, and he was no fool.

Knowing Graydon to be the son of a second, she could—under ordinary circumstances—have forbidden her daughter to marry him. In this instance she could not say him nay. The venom of James Hamsomer in that event would have no measure of pity. In her heart she prayed that death might come to her aid in the destruction of James Hamsomer.

It was not until she heard Graydon coming up the stairs that the solution flashed into her brain. If Jane became the wife of this cherished son James Hamsomer's power was gone! His lips would be sealed forever. She laughed aloud in the frenzy of hope. She laughed to think what a fool she would have been to forbid the marriage. The marriage? Her salvation! Jane found her almost hysterical, trembling like a leaf. She was obliged to confess that she had heard part of their conversation below in order to account for her manner. When Jane confessed to her that she had promised to marry Graydon in September—or June—she urged her to avoid a long engagement. She could say no more than that.

Now she sat there before the two men, a vain smile straying from one to the other, exhausted by her suppressed emotions. Suddenly, without a word, she held out her hand to Graydon. In her deepest soul she loved this manly, strong hearted young fellow. She knew, after all, he was worthy of the best woman in the land.

"You know?" cried Graydon, clasping her hand, his eyes glistening. "Jane has told you? And you—you think me worthy?"

"Yes, Graydon—you are worthy."

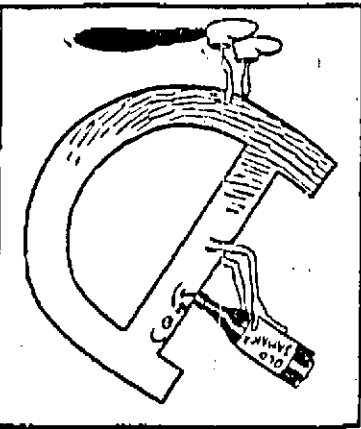

She looked long into his eyes, searching for a trace of the mischievousness that glowed in those of his father. They were fair and honest and sweet, and she smiled to herself. She wondered what his mother had been like.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Janesville Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys, if you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Janesville. Follow the advice of a Janesville citizen and be cured yourself.

Mrs. Joseph Gower of 6 Park Ave., Janesville, Wis., says:

"A dull aching and pain in the loins often extended around to my sides and there seemed to be no relief from the misery it brought me. Sometimes I was actually unfit for work. I used liniments and hot applications and tried various remedies but all the time I was growing worse. Finally I saw Doan's Kidney Pills recommended in our papers and procured a box at the People's Drug Co. They gave me relief almost instantly and in a few days after taking the first dose the backache and misery left me. I gained strength and sleep and have had no return of the trouble."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
